

STATE MATTERS.

The Wilmington Post says "the town is mild."

Col. E. D. Hall, of Wilmington, is canvassing for Greeley and Brown.

JOANNA NIXON, colored, has been arrested in Wilmington for stealing a watch.

The Richmond stock company is going for Wilmington during the Fair week.

The Israelites have subscribed liberally for building a synagogue in Wilmington.

The editor of the Fayetteville Eagle has been presented with a nice lot of sweet potatoes—one of which weighed five pounds.

The Wilmington Post says a man named Eason Johnson was shot last night by some parties unknown, on Red Cross street while going home.

The Wilmington Journal says one angry colored man came near chewing the ear of another man and brother on Saturday in a little unpleasantness.

The barque Rudolph went ashore on Sunday night near Big Island, in Cape Fear River, in consequence of the buoy on wreck shoal having been moved from its moorings, as we learn from the Post.

The Wilmington Star says: It is reported that a colored man by the name of Eason Johnson was shot on Sunday night last, on Red Cross street, while on his way home, and quite severely wounded.

A stray colored child was turned over to officer Richard Jones of the police force, on Monday, in Wilmington—an ineffectual effort having been made to find out its parents. So we learn from the Star.

The Roanoke Daily News says that a small negro boy driving the gin horses on the farm of Col. P. M. Parker, last week was caught between the moving lever and hand-wheel and instantly killed.

Ramsay the temperance lecturer, should go to Wilmington. Hear what the local of the Post says: "The wagon and the green man—no, the green man and the brown wheels—no, we mean the green wagon and brown wheel man is not in town? Oh—ah."

The Wilmington Post says the inhabitants of Smithville, a few days since, were visited by a distressing calamity recently. They got entirely out of whiskey and not one drop could be purchased for love or money. The garbison there has been happily relieved by the arrival of a vessel with "a wee drop" on board.

We learn from the Wilmington Star that the Young Men's Christian Association rooms of that city have been very tastefully and comfortably fitted up and are open every evening of the week for the reception of not only its members, but also of such strangers and young men unconnected with the association who wish to avail themselves of its splendid library and files of papers, besides spending a pleasant and profitable evening.

The Wilmington Journal learns from Dr. Rumley, Collector of the Port, who has just returned from Beaufort, that British barque Stella, from Providence, R. I., to Charleston, went ashore last Thursday, the 24th instant, 5 miles north of Cape Lookout, and will probably prove a total loss. The Capt. and crew were all rescued.

On the same day schooner Paul and Thompson, from New York, for Jacksonville, Fla., with an assorted cargo, went ashore at Swansboro, in Onslow county. The crew are all safe but the vessel is totally lost.

Next Tuesday.

One week from to-day until the election. Just a week!

What are we doing? Fellow-citizens, are you in earnest about electing Horace Greeley and B. Gratz Brown?

Shall we have four years of honest, able, faithful, pure government?

Or shall we have four years more of the same old sort?

Four years of Grantism?

Four years of Centralism?

Four years of tyranny?

Four years of corruption?

Four years of nepotism?

Four years of bad government?

Four years of negro on top in the South and of thieves in the Treasury at the North?

Do you want the pure government of your fathers?

Do you want men in office who shall consider your interests and not their own merely?

Do you want men in office who cannot be bought or bribed?

Do you want civil government?

Do you want freedom to vote, freedom to think, freedom to live, as your fathers had before the day of despotism dawned on the land?

Say if you will have these things. If you will, you must work for them. The janitors and myrmidons of the tyrant say you shall not have them.

You are called upon to pronounce next Tuesday, the fifth day of November, Anno Domini, 1872, whether you will have freedom or slavery, whether this government shall remain a Republic or become in deed and name an Empire.

You are called upon to decide this momentous question in the name of the memory of the past, in the interest of the personal and property rights of the present, in the behalf of the future of the country.

Will you decide like brave, chivalrous, patriotic men?

If you would have the blessings of free, economical, honest government for yourselves and posterity—

If you would rebuke tyranny and corruption—

If you would restore the administration of the government to its primal purity—

If you would lift up the Constitution to its high place of honor and power over the head of prostrate despotism—

If you would save the country and its liberties—

YOU MUST VOTE FOR HORACE GREELEY AND B. GRATZ BROWN NEXT TUESDAY.

The Wilmington Journal says: We regret to learn that Mr. W. A. Brown, formerly of this city, but now of New York, is very dangerously ill at the residence of his brother, Mr. T. W. Brown, in Brooklyn. This latter gentleman, who has been here for a week past, left last night, in response to a telegram, for his home in Brooklyn.

The Editor of the Biblical Recorder was at the Goldsboro Fair and gives the following brief but comprehensive account thereof:

The Goldsboro Fair opened finely. The buildings were elegant and the accommodations were ample.

Live deer were running about over the grounds, and hundreds of giant hogs were on exhibition. The show of flowers was splendid. As for the cakes and preserves, what elegant and skillful cooks these Eastern girls can be, when they try!

On Thursday there came a rain, which scattered the ladies and for a time broke up the races. As the weather improved the crowd increased, but the rain and wet ground very seriously diminished the receipts and curtailed the profits of the company.

The umbrella trade was heavy, and merchants drove a brisk business.

The Recent Operations in Wall Street—Large Profit to the Favorable Few—Speech on Finance Delivered by the Hon. James Brooks, at New Haven.

On the 18th instant the Hon. James Brooks addressed the business men and others of New Haven, upon politics as connected with business, and in the course of his address spoke as follows:

The currency of this country has been so ordered, or is so disordered, as to give the few, especially the few in the secret, a control almost absolute over the nominal values, the prices, and the exchanges of property, or over gold and silver as the representative of the property.

A recent operation in Wall Street—one of the worst I have ever known there—will best illustrate what I mean. Combinations are made there to make greenbacks and gold scarce or plenty, as the speculators desire.

Under a well-ordered currency, with an honest, straight forward administration of it, no three or four men, no matter if great capitalists, could make money scarce or plenty. Well, October 4th, greenbacks and gold having been made scarce in Wall Street, artificially, of course, gold being high and stocks low, the Government was invoked to interfere.

I am not going here to dwell upon that interference, the peril of it, some times, and the power of it, at all times; I am not going to say it was wise or unwise, right or wrong, for on all that men may differ; but I am going to make an expose upon which honest men cannot differ. I am going to show that the government or the administration of the government, October 4, did not deal fairly with the country, did not deal fairly with either Republicans or Democrats, in concealing from all, or making known only to a few, on a Friday and a Saturday, what it did and intended to do on a Monday following, the secret known to a few.

October 4th, two distinguished gentlemen—distinguished for their operations in Wall Street and in Washington—were in consultation with the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury (the Secretary not being in Washington administering the Treasury, but in his more appropriate calling of stamping Indians)—a fanatic in whatever he believes and ever carrying out its measures and principles fanatically—but he never makes money for himself in administering the Treasury, or knowingly allows others to do so, though others frequently use him. What was agreed to be done on Friday and Saturday in Washington would doubtless have been done by Mr. Boutwell had he been attending to his own Treasury business in lieu of stamping Indians; but it would have been done by Mr. Boutwell, openly, and above board, for the benefit of all Republicans in Wall Street, as well as for all Democrats, whereas what was done by General Grant's own interference with the Treasury, upon the solicitation of two New York bankers and brokers, and the fact was kept secret from all others, but their own clique until the Monday following.

The Government operators in the secret began to operate and to profit on their secret late Friday afternoon; and they had from Friday, October 4, to October 7 (Monday, secretly to operate in, not only in New York, but in New Haven, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago and elsewhere. On Saturday other Wall street operators began to see from the operations of the pets and favorites of the Government, that some thing was in the wind, some followed suit and profited thereby, but the secret was not publicly known to the whole street, or to the country, till October 7 (Monday).

Now what was the great secret—that invaluable secret—by the possession of which millions could be made at the expense of a country kept ignorant of it? Mr. Boutwell, in September, had given out his usual notices in September, had given out his usual notice in advance of how much gold he would buy. That was not what he would publish in good faith, on which all operators in gold or buyers of bills of exchange could rely. But it turned out to be only a delusion, for on Monday, October 7, it was officially announced that the Government would sell $5,000,000 in gold and buy $5,000,000 in bonds in addition to the official notice heretofore given. The effect was electrical in Wall street, and not only there, but among moneyed men all over the country, with the additional hint that if this did not do for the speculators, $4,000,000 of greenbacks would be reissued to inflate the country.

Account of the Death of Two Adventurous Tourists in the Crater of Vesuvius.

The Revista of Naples contains the following account of the loss of two gentlemen in the crater of Vesuvius, who with great tenacity insisted on being lowered down to the dark cavern immediately below the orifice of the crater.

A party was formed to ascend Mt. Vesuvius on Friday afternoon. The party consisted of two Americans, three Englishmen and one Frenchman. On Sunday night they took carriages from the cafe for Resina, reaching there at half-past eleven P. M. Having procured horses, guides, and other necessities, they started for the burning mountain, and began the ascent, one Luigi Garoglio leading as ciccone, and arrived at the base of the uppermost cone further than which horses do not go. The tourists then began the ascent over the hillocks and boulders of lava until the vicinity of the crater was reached, when Messrs. James Wilcox and Francois Le Mieur, an American and a Frenchman, insisted on being lowered down to the cavern which is formed below the mouth of the volcano. The guides, who provide themselves with ropes for that purpose, complied with the request of the foreigners and lowered them down.

The mountain being perfectly quiet no danger was anticipated; but when one of the party about the crater called out to the rash adventurers no answer was returned. The guides growing anxious, cried, "Gentlemen, it would be better for you to hold on to the ends of the ropes." Still the ropes remained slack, and no answer came from the sulphurous and murky cavern below.

Twenty minutes passed and the adventurers were yet silent. It was then proposed that one of the guides should be lowered down and hold on to the ropes until he had investigated the appearance of the cavern base. He had hardly entered when he cried out loudly: "Su! su! non e niente che uno pietra stessima!" ("Up! up! there's nothing here but a very narrow rock!")

As far as any living persons can tell the rest, the unfortunate strangers, the victims of their own imprudence, were hurried into the mysterious abysses of Mount Vesuvius.

In this same month, sixteen years ago, two Englishmen of birth and fortune and a French comedian committed the same terrible error. The same ambition which urged them to scale the icy heights of the Matterhorn also served them to search insidiously Vesuvius while it slept, and they were either lost in some labyrinth of lava and ashes or smothered by vapor of sulphur.

THE VOICE FROM TATNALL'S TOMB.

BY EDWIN DELEON.

[When, a few years since, an English squadron was engaged with the forts on the Peiho, one of our ships ran on a bank, and was suffering severely from the Chinese fire. An American frigate which was in the river came to her help—the commander saying briefly that blood was thicker than water.]

"Blood is thicker than water," was thus our Tattall said, When the crimson tide of slaughter dyed Peiho's river red; And the crippled British Lion, Wounded and snatched so, By the claws of China's Dragon, Fought on with angry roar. "Blood is thicker than water!" Said Tattall with hoarse and thick, Then steered his gallant frigate Right into the jaws of death— Where shot and shell fell thickest. From the batteries on the shore, While the shattered bulks of Britain could answer them no more. The evening sun shone lurid Through the War clouds' smoky pall, When the Eagle and the Lion Drove the dragon from his wall; And the rescued fleet of Britain Blossomed the bold and fearless brother, Who on Pagan shores repeated "Let us love one another."

"Blood is thicker than water!" The veteran said, When rattling slaughter Had drenched our land with gore. And, at the end of duty, He left that flag his pride— Fought for friends, home and freedom— Lost— broke his heart— and died. Yet, from that grave an echo Goes sounding through the world, Though Peace again is smiling, And battle flags are furled. "Blood is thicker than water!" O brethren! list that voice— And, like Tattall on the Peiho, Make the Southern heart rejoice. Smite with us the deadly dragon, Bruise the serpent head of hatred— Let fraternal discord cease, Let the dove of Concord hover Over Tattall's lovely grave, And the words he noisily uttered Be once more a spell to save.
